

Programme Outline for Workshop 3 & 4 July 2005

Cross Border Education— A Study Abroad Perspective

W O R K S H O P

Study Abroad for North American undergraduates has become widely accepted as an indispensable component of not only an individual's education, but also of a university's fundamental identity as an international institution meeting the challenges of a global society. The workshop will revisit the conventional wisdom that exchange programs are the most effective way of meeting these goals. It will examine the realities of the experience for students and their host universities and communities. It will scrutinize problems and obstacles to the designated goals. A panel of experts will summarise findings and propose best practices.
